Since Mr. Don Marquis and the Old Soak are soon to be my neighbors on The Tribune it was with considerable trepidation that I sought my judgmentseat last evening in the Plymouth

Ido not mean I eared the wrath of Mr. Morguies in case I did not understand his play; for, like all the dramatists, he is a forgiving and a kindly man. But as one of his hosts I desired no churlish note of mine to mar the chorus of welcome with which we shall open the gates. As I took my chair I said to Mr. Mantle, of "The Mail"; "Will my handclasp be clammy with the fetid dews of criticism, or will it burn with the heat of approbation?" I should not have worried. "The Old Soak" came through the footlight elembic, better in the play than he is in the column. Lest it be suspected that I am swayed to approval by an impending propinquity to Mr. Marquis, I like to say that such chill wise scres as John Barrymore, and John Farrar, the editor of the "Bookman," told me between the acts that "The Old Soak" was meritorious.

How, you will ask, can elements so commonplace, intrigue us fastidious play-goers? Well, Mr. Marquis combines them in a simple, humorous, credible narrative, replete with rich, but not too rich, speech, characterizagravy things which count. The play is a mellow little hootch-idyll, wherein neither the author nor the actors strain. They just go along, affording a true hero. BLUFFTON, Ind., Aug. 29.—W. H. Eichorn, of Bluffton, an assistant to Frank C. Daley in the prosecution of Senator Newberry, of Michigan, to-day declared "it is to be regretted that exigencies of politics make it necessary for an eminent member of the Cabinet to attempt to condone the act by which Senator Newberry procured his nomination and election to the United States Senate from Michigan."

The statement was given in reply to one issued by Secretary of State Hughes. was no response from the dog. But when the judge directed Pietros to call "Here Jack," the dog pricked up his ears and leaped into his master's "Whatever may be said about the criminal culpability of Mr. Newberry," said Eichorn, "the fact remains that his organization spent over $200,000 to procure for him the privilege of serving the people of his state in an office which pays a total salary of $45,000 for the entire term. This, too, in the face of a statute which limited the amount he could legally spend in getting the office to $3,750.

The Stage Door

William Courtenay will open in "Her Temporary Husband," by Edward A. Paul-ton, at the Frazee Theater on Thursday night, August 31. The play is now in the minth week of its run at the Cort Theater, Chicago

The Gaiety Theater, which is being remodeled, will be ready to open in another week. The first attraction will not be "Tons of Money," as has been announced but John Gaisworthy's play, "Loyalties," which is now in rehearsal under the direction of Basil Dean. The opening date is Monday, September 25. After some needed remodeling "Tons of Money" will be brought to New York later in the season.
